Tutorial Action in present education
Consulte nuestra página web: www.sintesis.com
En ella encontrará el catálogo completo y comentado
Tutorial Action in present education

Jorge Expósito López (coord.)
Contents

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>List of authors</th>
<th>13</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Introduction</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PART I. CONCEPTUAL, EPISTEMOLOGICAL AND ORGANIZATIONAL APPROACH TO TUTORIAL ACTION

1. A conceptual approach to Tutorial Action .................................................. 21
   Jorge Expósito López

   1.1. Guidance and Tutorial Action from its origin to present day ............... 24
       1.1.1. Background of Guidance and Tutorial Action .............................. 24
       1.1.2. Origin and development of Guidance and Tutorial Action .............. 24
       1.1.3. Expansion and institutionalization of Guidance and Tutorial Action .............................................................................................................. 25
       1.1.4. Guidance and Tutorial Action in Europe and Spain ...................... 26

   1.2. Present guidance and Tutorial Action from its sociocultural consideration .............................................................................................................. 28

   1.3. Delimitation, principles and characteristics of present Tutorial Action ... 29

   1.4. Intervention contexts and agents of present Tutorial Action ............... 32
       1.4.1. Tutor teachers in the academic and educational context .............. 33
       1.4.2. The new modulation of family context ........................................ 36
       1.4.3. Relations in the social context .............................................. 38
       1.4.4. Professional training agents in the labour context ..................... 39
1.4.5. Other contexts and agents involved in Tutorial Action .......... 39

1.5. Conclusion ..................................................................................... 39

Questions to reflect on ........................................................................ 40

2. Psycho-pedagogical theories and principles that guide the Tutorial Action ................................................................. 41

Eva María Olmedo Moreno and Marciana Pegalajar Moral

2.1. Basic and specific principles of Tutorial Action ................................ 42

2.2. Theories on personal development and learning ............................ 46
  2.2.1. The psychoanalytical approach .................................................. 47
  2.2.2. The environmentalist approach ................................................. 50
  2.2.3. The humanist approach ............................................................ 56
  2.2.4. The techno-pedagogical approach ............................................. 57
  2.2.5. The sociocultural approach ....................................................... 59

2.2. Theories for social development and integration ............................ 60
  2.3.1. Dialogical learning and learning communities ......................... 61
  2.3.2. Cooperative learning ................................................................. 62

2.4. Conclusion ..................................................................................... 62

Questions to reflect on ........................................................................ 63

PART II. GENERAL PLANNING AND SPECIFIC DEVELOPMENT OF TUTORIAL ACTION

3. Planning and development processes in Tutorial Action .................. 67

Eva María Aguaded Ramírez

3.1. The development of Tutorial Action ............................................. 68
  3.1.1. Teaching staff in the development of Tutorial Action ............... 70
  3.1.2. Development of Tutorial Action using the specific and mixed modalities ................................................. 72
  3.1.3. Development of Tutorial Action using the integrated modality ......................................................... 74

3.2. Development of tutoring through educational plans and projects .... 80
  3.2.1. Planning in Tutorial Action ....................................................... 80
  3.2.2. Preparation and contents of tutoring plans ............................... 81
  3.2.3. Implementation and development of Tutorial Action plans ...... 83
  3.2.4. Assessment of Tutorial Action plans ....................................... 83

3.3. Conclusion ..................................................................................... 86

Questions to reflect on ........................................................................ 86
4. Tutorial Action through Action Research .................................................... 89
   Pilar Colás Bravo, José Antonio Contreras Rosado and Jesús Conde Jiménez

   4.1. Preparation of Tutorial Action plan from a group perspective .............. 89
   4.2. Collaborative Tutorial Action................................................................. 91
   4.3. Educational contents in which to apply collaborative Tutorial Action .... 92
   4.4. Action research methodology in collaborative Tutorial Action .......... 95
   4.5. Methodological process of action research in collaborative Tutorial Action ...................................................................................... 97
   4.6. Theories that support Tutorial Action based on Action Research ........ 102
       4.6.1. Change and learning through action ......................................... 102
       4.6.2. Collaborative and social construction of knowledge ................. 104
       4.6.3. Agency in learning .................................................................... 105
   4.7. Conclusion............................................................................................ 106
   Questions to reflect on .................................................................................... 107

5. Tutorial Proceedings for students with special needs ............................ 109
   María José León Guerrero

   5.1. Diversity and its response at school......................................................... 109
   5.2. Guidance and Tutorial Proceedings from the inclusive model .......... 113
   5.3. Guidance and Tutorial Proceedings: from the legislation to the tutoring programming by the tutor .......................... 116
       5.3.1. Regulatory level of the Tutorial Proceedings .............................. 118
       5.3.2. The educational institution: the second level of planning of the Tutorial Proceedings ............................................. 118
       5.3.3. The first level of planning and development of the Tutorial Proceedings: the teacher-tutor and the tutor programming...... 123
   5.4. Conclusion............................................................................................ 133
   Questions to reflect on .................................................................................... 133

6. Tutorial Action with the most capable pupils ............................................. 135
   Carmen Jiménez Fernández

   6.1. Summary of research on the most capable pupils ................................. 136
   6.2. What the most capable students are like and how they learn............... 139
       6.2.1. Cognitive and metacognitive characteristics ............................ 139
       6.2.2. Motivational and personality characteristics .......................... 141
       6.2.3. Characteristics related to creativity ......................................... 142
       6.2.4. Asynchrony ............................................................................... 143
   6.3. High capacity characteristics and attendant reactions..................... 145
PART III. DIMENSIONS AND CONTENTS
IN TUTORIAL ACTION WORK PLANS

7. Tutorial Action and coexistence, participation and democracy improvement at school ................................................................. 161

Leonor Buendia Eisman

7.1. Coexistence, participation and democracy at education centres ...................................................................... 161

7.2. Coexistence as an element of educational planning .................... 163
    7.2.1. The Educational Project of the Centre and coexistence, participation and democracy .............................................. 164
    7.2.2. School coexistence plan and coexistence, participation and democracy .................................................................. 165 7.2.3. Guidance and Tutorial Action plan and coexistence, participation and democracy .............................................. 166

7.3. Improvement of coexistence, participation and democracy from Tutorial Action .................................................................... 167

7.4. Stages in the preparation of rules to improve coexistence and democratic participation in all the educational community ...... 169

7.5. Involvement of the educational community for coexistence, participation and democracy ....................................................... 171
    7.5.1. Families in coexistence, participation and democracy .......... 171
    7.5.2. Teaching staff .................................................................... 172

7.6. Conclusion ................................................................................... 173

Questions to reflect on .................................................................. 173
11. Tutorial Action and the integration of cross-curricular themes

Jorge Expósito López

11.1. Cross-curricular subjects and Tutorial Action
11.2. Cross-curricular model, from values education to skill development
11.3. Incorporating the cross-curricular model in the training process
11.4. Educational agents before the cross-curricular model
  11.4.1. Teachers and tutor before the cross-curricular model
  11.4.2. Usual subjects and contents for the development of the cross-curricular model
  11.4.3. Methodology, educational resources and activities to develop the cross-curricular model
  11.4.4. Assessing the cross-curricular model
11.4.5. Students and families before the cross-curricular model
11.5. Conclusion
Questions to reflect on

PART IV. STRATEGIES AND SPECIFIC TECHNIQUES TO DEVELOP TUTORING PLANS

12. Students as an essential element of Tutorial Action

Emilio Berrocal de Luna

12.1. Students in Tutorial Action
12.2. Individual actions with students for Tutorial Action
  12.2.1. Interviews as a resource of individualized Tutorial Action
12.3. Peer tutoring in Tutorial Action
12.4. Group tutoring
  12.4.1. Small-group work
  12.4.2. Class group
  12.4.3. Group dynamics in group TA
12.5. Families and other professionals in attention to students
12.6. Conclusion
Questions to reflect on

13. The family and other social agents and their incorporation in the Tutorial Action

Sonia Rodríguez Fernández and Pilar Martínez Clares

13.1. Integration of families in the Tutorial Action
13.2. Dynamics for family interaction
Contents

13.3. Interviews with the families ................................................................. 257
13.4. Families school ..................................................................................... 260
  13.4.1. Objectives of the families school .................................................... 261
  13.4.2. Characteristics of the families school ............................................. 262
  13.4.3. Methodology and priority actions for the development of families school ........................................................................... 262
13.5. Incorporation of other social agents in the teaching activity .......... 264
  13.5.1. Relationship between the teacher and other “systems” .......... 264
  13.5.2. The teacher’s relationship with community agents ................. 266
  13.5.3. The teacher’s relationship with private entities ....................... 266
Questions to reflect on .................................................................................... 267

14. ICT in present Tutorial Action ............................................................... 269

  Jorge Expósito López

  14.1. ICT and the digital transformation of education ............................ 270
  14.2. To a new learning model ................................................................. 272
  14.3. Pros and cons of the educational use of ICT ................................. 277
  14.4. Tutoring and Tutorial Action through ICT .................................... 279
        14.4.1. ICT tutor’s profile .................................................................... 282
        14.4.2. ICT student’s profile ............................................................... 285
        14.4.3. Families and their incorporation to Tutorial Actions through ICT ............................................................................. 286
  14.5. ICT tools and their application to Tutorial Actions ..................... 286
        14.5.1. Basic tools based on hardware .............................................. 287
        14.5.2. Derivative tools based on software ....................................... 288
  14.6. Conclusion ......................................................................................... 289
Questions to reflect on .................................................................................... 289

Bibliography .................................................................................................. 291